Architects To Protest Today

McGill Architecture students march today in protest against the lack of comprehensive physical planning for the campus.

Their leaders charge:

"Now that McGill is about to embark on a multi-million dollar expansion program the problem of complete planning is immediate. Unless it is solved the errors made through haphazard and superficial planning will plague faculty and students for the rest of McGill's life."

"Bad planning and poor architecture with few exceptions has characterized the building of this campus since the war. We fear a continuation of the same."

"How can a university even plan for expansion when there is no firm admissions policy determining the upper limit of student population?"

BRIEF PRESENTED

The students will gather at the school of Architecture in the McConnell Engineering Building at 1 pm. and plan to wind up their march at Dawson Hall, the administrative centre of the university.

There, they will present the brief reproduced in this article to the Board of Governors of the university, through Dean Thompson, the acting principal.

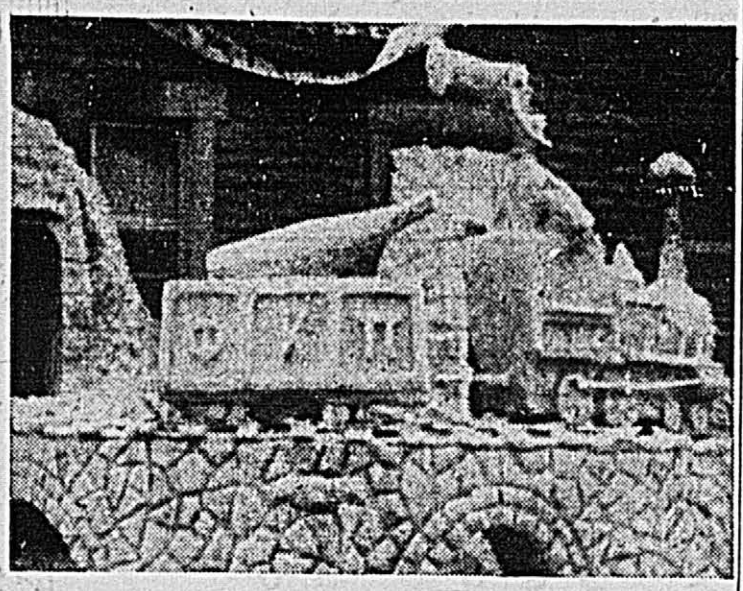
They will also hand out flyers citing examples of developments which have arisen on campus from the lack of a master plan — the fact that the Union is on its third 'final' site, that the arts faculty is scattered among 6 different buildings, that the campus is choked with parked cars, and that many buildings are lacking aesthetically. They ask whether there is a body of qualified planners, or a master plan for construction on the campus.

Spokesmen for the AUS stated that the rally had absolutely no affiliation with any other protest that has been organized on campus — neither the professors' petition nor the inquiry headed by SEC president Stuart Smith.

Smith told the Daily that he had met with the Union Committee of the Board of Governors to see that the new Union would be planned by the best architects possible. The Students' Society New Union Committee had already indicated to the chairman, Mr. Fuller, that they were unhappy with the present arrangements, and suggested making new ones.

Smith reported: 'We were assured that within the next few days action would be taken, and have every confidence in Mr. Fuller. If we had not received cooperation, we would have gone to the Students' Society meeting on Tuesday and asked for action. That is not necessary yet".

Chug-a-lug Choo Choo



This Carnival Special was the winning entry in the Snow Sculpture contest. Constructed by Phi Kappa Pi fraternity, it is now a favorite of art-lovers the world over and rumour has it that the Redpath is trying to buy it for its next exhibit of aboriginal objets d'art.

The Petition

To the Board of Governors, McGill University:

This body, the Architectural Undergraduate Society of McGill University, is deeply concerned by the danger of haphazard development and, having McGill's interests at heart, respectfully requests that the Administration give information on the following points:

1) Does the University have a comprehensive development plan?

If such a master plan exists or if it does not, how are the following questions resolved?

(a) Is there a plan to determine land uses and depermental precincts?

b) Is there a plan to indicate projected land uses and land acquisition necessary for expansion?

c) Can the existing facilities of departments be extended without occupying distant sites?

d) Does a plan exist which establishes priorities of land uses in terms of the academic central core of the University and proximity of other departments?

e) Have serious studies been made to decide upon the best location of future buildings according to their relationship to other building?

f) Is there a plan which limits building.. masses and heights and respects historical and architecturally important buildings?

g) Have pedestrian, vehicular, and service access routes been clarified?

h) What considerations have been given to the landscaping of the grounds?

2) Has the University a permanent body of highly qualified persons to deal with all aspects of physical planning?

3) Does McGill have a definite educational and enrolment policy to guide the policies of a planning committee?

We hope that our questions will be considered and that a statement will be made.

Candidates Revealed For Leading Campus Posts

The names of candidates for the position of president and vice-president of the Students' Society, and chairman of the SAC have been releazsed by Alan Golden, returning Officer of the SEC.

Nominations for these campus posts closed on Thursday, at 4 pm. Eligible candidates are:

For the position of president of the Students' Society, David Angus, Robert Carswell, and Phillip DeZwirek.

For the position of vice-president of the Students' Society, Joel Bell, William G. Hutchison, and Robert Tate.

Peter King was the only nominee for the post of chairman of the Students' Athletic Council. Another student was nominated, but appears to be ineligible because he does not have the minimum academic requirement.

WOMEN'S UNION

At the same time, Elizabeth Duquet, Electoral Officer of the Women's Union, announced the names of candidates for Women's Union posts.

They are:

Gail Parkins and Ann Wilson for President; Marney Duff, Judy Lamb, and Rosalind Saginur for 5th member-at-large, Women's Union and Vice President, Students' Union; Heather Dickson, Rachel Kizell, Frances Levine and Barbara McArthur for Secretary of the W.U.; Lyn MacKenzie and Jean Taylor for president of the WAA.

NEW SYSTEM

A new system of preferential voting was introduced by former Director of Elections Murray Greenwood last year. It will be used to decide only the new President and Vice President of the Students' Society on March 1, although it is applicable to all Students' Society, SAC, and Women's Union posts. It only goes into effect when more than two candidates are competing for the same post.

The preferential system is designed "to provide a more democratic basis" for electing candidates. Under the new system, a voter will place the number '1' beside his first choice, and, if he wishes, write '2' beside his second choice. He is not compelled to make a second choice.

FIRST CHOICE

When the votes are counted, the counters will make a pile of first choice votes for each candidate. Then they will take the votes which have gone to all but the first two candidates, and redistribute them according to their second choices.

In this way, students who cast their votes for a candidate who subsequently turned out to be not in the running, will have their second choice votes counted toward one of the two men who actually wins the position.

Although the new system seems complicated, it will be simplified by instructions printed clearly on the ballot.

Except for the positions of President and Vice-President of the students' Society, the old system will apply, and only an X will be valid on the ballots.

PEN SKETCHES

Candidates for the various positions are asked to submit combined pensketches and platforms to the Daily by Wednesday, February 22. Word limits for the pensketches are 350 words for candidates for Students' Society president, 200 words for president of the Women's Union, 200 words for Vice-president of the Students' Society, 150 words for SAC chairman, 150 words for WAA president, 100 words for Women's vice-president, Students' Union, 100 words for Women's Union Secretary.

Words over the limit will be cut. Pensketches and platforms must be typed, double-typed, on one side only of the page; platforms signed by the candidates and pensketches bearing the words "Committee for the Candidate", and the signature of one committee-member, which will not be printed.

Photographs, head and shoulders only, should be glossy portraits, not snapshots. Address entries to the News Editor, and leave them with John at the Tuckshop.

McGill Reaches IUDL Finals

McGill debaters have succeeded in reaching the finals of the IUDL eastern conference.

The two McGill entries beat St. Patrick's and Ottawa Universities, and will therefore compete with Bishop's University for the championship of the eastern section. The winner of that round, to be held next week-end, will advance to the national semi-finals.

In the first round, McGill's affirmative team of Irwin Cotler and Gordon Echenberg successfully upheld the resolution "Resolved: That Neutrality is Immoral" against a visiting team from St. Patrick's in Ottawa. Their margin of victory was a convincing forty points.

NARROW DEFEAT

The negative of J.J. Elkin and Michael Stein were narrowly defeated at St. Patrick's, by a margin of only twenty points. Thus the combined total for this first round saw McGill defeat their opponents by twenty points and advance into the second round against Ottawa University.

The second round was a similar to the first. The affirmative of Cotler and Echenberg again victoriously upheld the resolution, while Elkin and Stein, debating away from home, lost to their opponents from Ottawa.

POINT SYSTEM

However, once again the point system worked to McGill's advantage, as the margin of victory of the affirmative exceeded the margin of defeat of the negative, and McGill was thus declared the overall winner.

McGill is defending its IUDL championship, won last year.

In addition to participating in the IUDL tournament, McGill debaters also took part in the Winter Carnival Debating Conference. The team of Cotler and Echenberg, which also participated in this conference, was one of the teams to be undefeated in all of its debates.

Students' Society Meeting Tomorrow

A meeting of the Students' Society of McGill will take place in the Union Ballroom tomorrow at 1 pm. At least 300 students must attend to make up the required quorum.

To be discussed are:

1. NFCUS's plan for 10,000 more scholarships from the Canadian Government;
2. Constitutional amendments;
3. The plans for the new Students' Union.

Insult To Injury

The "caleche" was not even a caleche.

Insult was added to injury yesterday when our "Old Quebec Historians" informed us that McGill's "caleche" was not a caleche. but a Victoria. Caleches only have two wheels, whereas the McGill engineers' vehicle had four. What is more, we were told, there are only about three caleches still extant in the Province.

This insult was added to the increasingly obvious fact that the adventure was a hoax.

The facts seem irrefutable.

The Engineers were seen thirty miles south of Quebec, and thirty miles north of Montreal; there is no trace of them in between. Five groups of people made the trip to Quebec to volunteer help, and none reported seeing the caleche. All phoned the Daily to ask for information, and later, to report on the search for their whereabouts.

Caleche tracks were traced in the snow, and were spotted by two groups. The tracks, with footprints, led up to some truck tracks, and then stopped. It is very likely that the caleche was loaded into one of the trucks at this point.

They were traced as far as a gas station at Laurier Station, which is near where the Daily reporters left them about 5:30 pm. They were reported to have turned back to Quebec, but no one else said they had seen them. Even bus and truck drivers along the way were questioned, but they, having travelled the route in both directions did not see the caleche.

Various sources report the idea was originally hatched as a hoax, but when they received all the publicity, the engineers decided to go through with it. At this point several of the volunteers backed out. This in itself does not mean that the trip was a hoax, but the seeds of the idea were there.

All these factors seem to lead to the conclusion that the engineers packed the caleche into a truck some 30 miles south of Quebec and unpacked it 30 miles outside of Montreal to reap all the glory.

This could have been a very good thing for McGill. Much publicity was reaped, even Time Magazine covered the story; now the publicity will be of a bad sort. It could have meant a big boost in campus spirit ("The Canadian Caleche Pulling Record") but the lack of enthusiasm was shown in the cool reception received by the engineers.

The people who suffered most were those volunteers who acted in good faith and went out to help on Thursday night. These men spent the whole night looking for the caleche, and all failed. They reported to the Daily, and were instrumental in the gathering of evidence. It is they who deserve our gratitude.

A Positive Approach

Today at 1 pm a group of students from the School of Architecture will march in protest against what they claim to be the lack of comprehensive physical planning for McGill's campus. The architects, in their petition to the administration, are demanding to know how this lack of planning came about. They wish to know if, in fact, there is a master plan for future construction at McGill.

This protest march is one of the first positive steps McGill students have taken in recent years with a view to ameliorating the approach towards "operation expansion." We salute the architects for taking the initiative in presenting their well-thought out protest to the administration.

We only hope the "march" will maintain an aura of dignity which will give this demonstration the serious aspects which will make it effective. We hope that other McGill students who sympathize with the architects will either join with them or take similar positive steps to voice their criticisms.

McGill Wins IVDL Awards

McGill's entry to the Inter Varsity Drama Festival won three major awards this weekend.

"The People Are Not With Us', by James Rother, was named the best Canadian play submitted. Its director, Leslie Caplan, won the award for the best overall production, and Carol Ann Dear, in the role of Carla, won the award for the best supporting actress.

The McGill entry won three of the eight awards for which it was eligible. This is the first year that either of these three prizes have been won by McGill.

In the past two years, the award for the best Canadian play has gone to plays written by Robertson Davies.

RESULT

As a result of the success of this year's production, the officials of the festival have ruled that next year all plays must be presented in arena style. This year, McGill was the only university to submit a production staged arena-style.

The McGill cast operated under a handicap when they performed the play at midnight, February 17. Their entry was originally scheduled to be presented on the morning of the 18th. Due to a change in the circumstances, however, they were asked to go on a day earlier.

This meant that they and the technical crew would have to forego their technical rehearsal. What the judges saw was a performance in which the props, furniture, and lighting equipment were being handled for the first time.

HISTORY

"The People Are Not With Us" was first produced last Spring by the Players' Club for "Experimentals '60". It was revised last fall by author Rother, with the festival in mind, and then chosen by the Players' Club for the IVDL entry.

Director Leslie Caplan chose the following cast: Robin Lake, Steve Cacking, Victor Fascio, David Francis, and Carol Ann Dear. The play will be presented again with the same cast on Marsh 4 at the Plattsburg State Teachers' College, along with "The Bard', by Neil Madden, which will be premiered this week in "Experimentals '61".

Union Captures Debating Crown

by GARTH STEVENSON

Union College of Schenectady, New York, won the Winter Carnival Debating Conference finals on Saturday by the unanimous decision of three judges.

The annual conference, described as "the largest of its kind in the British Commonwealth", was attended this year by 70 teams from 35 Canadian and American colleges and universities.

The Union team of Paul Baltay and Arnold Klappar defeated a MacDonald College Team consisting of Chris Gilbert and Carlton Davis. The winners upheld the negative side of the topic: "Resolved that surrender to Russia is preferable to risking the destruction of humanity in nuclear war."

NUCLEAR WEAPONS

The first speaker was Gilbert of the affirmative. He described in considerable detail the effects of nuclear weapons, which he divided into immediate effects of blast and radiation and the genetic effects of long-term radiation. He then claimed that continued resistance to Russia involved the 'risk' of racial suicide, and that suicide was condemned as a sin by all religious leaders.

Baltay, speaking for the negative, said that his opponents had not defined the risk of nuclear war and were comparing the effects of surrender to the certainty of nuclear war, which was not proved. He also reminded them that a western surrender would still leave two states with a nuclear potential, Russia and China, and would not end the threat of nuclear war.

SURRENDER IS SUICIDE

He went on to say that "the essence of humanity is freedom" and that surrender to Russia would also be a form of suicide. He compared the risk of physical mutation with brainwashing or "mental mutation". "They would take our minds and our bodies... our children would never hear of democracy or God."

Davis, the second affirmative speaker, referred to "misleading statements" of his opponents and described their definition of humanity as "limited." He produced additional statistics on the possible effects of nuclear war and mentioned that such a war might be started accidentally or as a preventive measure by the Russians.

Klappar, the second negative, reiterated the point about China. He also said that Russia would remain a total dictatorship because the "classless society" envisaged by Marx was contrary to human nature.

RESIST

"Our opponents suggest resistance after surrender. Surely the time to resist is before surrender, while we are strong and united... we should try to reduce tension as a free people, able to bargain."

The judges of the debate were Professor J.W. Miller, chairman of the Philosophy Department, Assistant Dean of Arts and Science C.D. Solin, and Lieutenant Victor Lugowski of the Merchant Marine Academy.

Carabins Retain Birks Trophy

by LEW MOSS

Before a strongly partisan, near capacity crowd at McGill Winter Stadium on Friday evening, the Redmen displayed their poorest hockey of the season, both offensively and defensively, as they went down to a resounding 8-2 defeat at the hands of the U. of M. Carabins.

With this event as the only damper during an otherwise joy-filled Carnival weekend, the Redmen literally gave the Birks Trophy to the U. of M. boys for another year, their fourth in succession.

REVAMPED LINE-UP

Coach Ken Murray revamped his line-up for this traditional contest hoping that with the scoring ability of Konyk moved up to the forward line the McGill boys might break out of their scoring famine, which plagued them throughout the season. With Konyk, Grant, and Jones constituting the first line, Hutchison, O'Reilly, and Mosely the second, and Juliani, Peters, and McClernon the third, Coach Murray was hopeful of some good offensive drive by the squad.

But any hope of victory became faint once the game commenced, as the offensive lines continually failed to click on their passes, which resulted in their continual inability to cross the Carabin's red line, with an even greater ineptness to take shots on goal. The defensive corps is worthy of similar "praise"? as they continually failed to clear the puck, and showed little or no ability to carry the rubber to center ice.

With this type of play it was of little surprise that with less than half the game over, the Carabins led by a 4-0 count, For a short moment it appeared as though the Redmen might awaken from their doldrums, as stalwart Leo Konyk skated skillfully down the ice, evading both Montreal defenseman, and slammed a short one by U. of M.'s goalie. However this proved to be the closest that McGill could come to overtaking the Montreal squad, as the Carabins countered again before the end of the second period, making the score 5-1.

The Redmen took the ice for the third period apparently resolved to their fate, as the U. of M. added three more markers to a lone tally by Bruce Hutchison of McGill thereby making the final score 8-2, in favor of (surprise!) the Carabins. Even the usually dependable play of goalie Herron was lacking in this defeat.

The McGill boys will have an opportunity to make a better showing, gain revenge, and climb out of the league cellar this Wednesday when they meet the same U. of M. team again at M. W. S.

McGill's Squash Squad Squashed In Skirmish

In the yearly squash classic played at Western University on Friday and Saturday of last week McGill walked off with a brilliant defeat.

Massacred in 14 out of 15 games they delivered one of the most startling surprises of the past 13 years. They won in 11 seasons, tied once to Toronto, and lost only this year.

Colin Adair, a freshman, copped the only victory beating Hogtown U's Smith. Derek Drummond, Carl Ljunberg, and Derek Pender were new additions to the squad, playing with Guy Steed of soccer fame and Adair.

Ross Adair could be called an indirect reason for the loss since he was out due an operation, though he modestly refused to admit that his absence had any bearing on the final outcome of the meet. Also the loss of the LaFleur brothers to the Law field was a blow to Coach Al Molloy's racket wreckers.

Final result of the total 15 matches was Western 7, Toronto 7, and McGill 1.

Our sentiments are expressed very aptly in the words of Ross Adair who said, "All I can say is I hope we win next year".
